(Reuters photo) PARIS: The French National Front chief made a strong anti-Islam debut in an interview published Tuesday with a prominent German newspaper and described Muslims in the country as second-class citizens, an apparent challenge to German Chancellor Angela Merkel. The interview with anti-Islam leader Marine Le Pen was published in Germany's Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung. "Islam is a political ideology that is hostile to our Republic," she told the paper, referring to France's secular state. "Islam is anti-democratic because it is an ideology that, according to its adherents, seeks to impose itself on society." Le Pen, who is the National Front's first female leader, said
